SIGNAL HILL

In a nod to our town's early beginnings and the mountain under which we sit, Signal Hill is the latest chapter in the rich history of one of Devonport's most iconic houses.

Part of this building we now call Signal Hill was originally built around 1846 by William Oliver, one of the earliest settlers on the North Shore and the first person laid to rest at Signal Hill - the landmark we know now as Mt Victoria. Then named Flagstaff, Devonport was to transform from an isolated 'island' to a heaving commercial centre and busy naval base. And at the heart of it all, standing through decades of change, war campaigns and commercial development was 24 Victoria Road.

As the oldest existing house in Devonport, 24 Victoria Road boasts more than a century's worth of intrigue. If these walls could talk, they'd tell tales of pioneers, politics and even scandal.

Now it's time for new stories to fill these walls - and that's where you come in.

In preserving a piece of history, we've created a new future for one of Devonport's most loved landmarks, bringing this building back to life to serve as a modern bar and restaurant in the heart of our township. Today, Signal Hill is a space where locals and visitors can connect, enjoy great food and share their own tales over a glass with family and friends.
